MEMORIAL FOR WAR PRESIDENT

Wilson Dam Engineering Project Second Only to the Panama Canal.

Washington. — America's wartime President is to have an enduring memorial in Wilson dam at Muscle Shoals, to be commissioned late in the summer of 1925.

The project, deemed an engineering achievement second only to the Panama canal, was 82½ per cent completed October 1, the date of the latest formal report. An appropriation of $7,000,000 more will be required from congress.

The total cost, with eight generators installed, will be $45,000,000, and the dam will be capable of producing power some time next summer. It will have an ultimate capacity of 600,000 horse power, over the disposition of which a bitter controversy is raging in congress.

Creates Artificial Lake.
Wilson dam will eventually create an artificial lake, extending upstream in the Tennessee river about eighteen miles, with an average width of three-quarters of a mile.

The dam proper is considered the largest in the world and is a mile long, 137 feet high and covers 20 acres. The work is under the general supervision of Maj. Gen. Harry Taylor, chief of army engineers, with Lieut. Col. George R. Spaulding in immediate charge of the construction forces.

Some 230,000 horse power of hydro-electric generating apparatus will be ready by next summer. A powerhouse, 1,250 feet long, 100 feet wide and 134 feet high will be in use. A two-stage lock for navigation, with a total lift of 93 feet, forms one of the features in connection with the project.

Surplus waters during flood periods in the river will be passed through 58 steel flood-control gates, each 88 feet long and 18 feet high. The dam or spillway section is 3,050 feet long, 95 feet high from the river bed and is 105 feet thick at the base. Thirteen special spillways equipped with butterfly valves will pass surplus water during normal flow on the river.

Wilson dam is officially known as "Dam No. 2" and is one of three projected in the Tennessee river at Muscle Shoals. Dam No. 1 is a small navigating dam, not yet authorized, to be two miles below Wilson dam.

River Can Be Used.
After all proposed improvements are completed, engineer officers point out, the Tennessee river will be navigable from the Ohio river to Knoxville, Tenn.

The district through which this river flows is rich in mineral, timber and agricultural resources, declares Major General Taylor, and would be greatly benefited by adequate river transportation facilities. The principal obstructions to navigation are the shoals in the Muscle Shoals area, and completion of Wilson dam will be the first great step toward opening up that region to water development.

Museum Gets Fossils of Dwarf Camel and Horse

Washington.—Fossil bones of a dwarf camel and a three-toed midge horse, which are believed to have roamed western North America until some 4,800,000 years ago, are the latest addition to the collection at the National museum. They have just been brought to the museum by Dr. W. F. Foshag, assistant curator of mineralogy, among other fossils remains found in the rock formations of Nevada during a five-months' field study there.

The horse, apparently about two and a half feet high, and the camel, three or four feet, are believed to have been evolved out of the processes of nature during the last days of the Neocene age, or some 4,000,000 or 5,000,000 years ago, according to Dr. J. W. Gidley, assistant curator. They supposedly were still in existence when the highest peaks of the Rocky mountains were being pushed up.

Plan to Stop Killing of Huge Tortoises

Washington.—Efforts will be made to prevent extermination of the huge tortoises on the Galapagos islands, off Ecuador, by finding a refuge for them on some desert island near the United States. Dr. William Beebe, naturalist, told the National Geographic society last night the tortoises, believed to be the oldest living animals, and some of them to have been in existence before Columbus came over, are rapidly being killed off for oil and will disappear unless an island of refuge is found.

Famous Vine Bears

London.—Six hundred bunches of black Hamburgh grapes, some of them weighing more than two pounds each, have just been cut from the great vine at Hampton Court palace.

This grapevine, like Ephraim Ball's original Concord vine, which still flourishes in the Massachusetts town, is one of the most famous in the world. It is more than a century and a half old.

Landlady Profits

Dublin.—Francis W. Wickham, price of land left his estate of $100,000 to his landlady, Mrs. Anne M. Wickham, because she did not raise his rent during the war.

THE OFFICE CAT

(By Janus.)

An accident report received by a railroad superintendent from a section boss: "Dear Sir:—The horse that No. 8 killed yesterday was a mule and ain't dead yet. Yours truly."

"I put my foot in it that time," said the man as he walked out of the shoe store.

Policeman, with prisoner: "Your honor, this man was caught picking pockets at the circus."

Judge: "Ten dollars fine."

Policeman: "Your honor, he has only five."

Judge: "Then turn him loose until he gets the rest."

"Sure, I do," answered the young traveler. "I'm in the top drawer."

Song of a City Cliff-Dweller.
Lady of the green silk bloomers,
Living just across the court;
Would your landlord's other roomers
Were your unaffected sort.

When the shades of night are gently
Slipping down upon the world,
Leave your bedroom shades all Furled.

You disrobing accidentally
Through the fluttering clothes-lined vista.

Gaze I at the charming view;
Ah, so charmed to see O sister,
So much "that is essential you."

Just across the court from me,
Landlady would have fewer kickers
Were there more like you to see.

Daughters wouldn't have so much to tell mothers if mothers would tell daughters more.

Tough Flour.
"I wish to complain," said the bride haughtily, "about the flour you sold me. It was tough."

"Tough, ma'am?" asked the grocer.

"Yes, tough. I made pie with it and my husband could hardly cut it."

The day school was reopened January 5, after a two weeks vacation. The children are happy coasting on the hills near the school house at noon time.

Mrs. Vedder and family were guests at his sister's, Mrs. Wilson Carle Sunday, attending the church service.

At the meeting of the old and new constituency of church Lewis York was chosen president in place of Charles J. Drab, Lewis E. Snyder clerk in place of Winfield Drab, Wilson Ackerman was re-elected as treasurer. Sunday school at 1 p. m. Services at 2 p. m. January 11.

Mrs. Mildred York of Saugerties spent the latter part of week with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis York.

Edith M. York, secretary and James Longmire, treasurer of Sunday school, gave in their 1924 reports Sunday, which were accepted as read. One new class was formed. The attendance is good. A cordial welcome to all.

Again the children of Mrs. Anna C. Snyder came to their childhood home to spend New Year's Day with her. A merry party worked around the bonfire on the wood pile, while the "winning folks" busied themselves in the house around the stove and table to get the "Goodies" ready for all.

So Essex Chassis likewise forecasts the mechanical design of the future

Essex provides stability without unnecessary weight. It has economy without sacrifice of performance.

It is low priced without disappointment in looks or reliability.

It is more than up-to-date in design. It is in advance of any car with which its price can be compared.

It is built on the Super-Six principle, by Hudson workmen in the Hudson shops.

In quality Hudson and Essex are alike. The patents which make the Super-Six the most enduring, smoothest motor and give it all advantages sought in eight cylinders, prevent any from copying its chassis as has been so generally done in copying the Coach body.

DAWES PLAN AND COLOGNE.

Recent developments tend to confirm assertions made in the past that the German-language press in this country is often more extreme than the ultra-nationalists in Germany itself. According to the leading German paper in New York, if the Allies fail to evacuate Cologne on January 10, "Germany" would have full right to refuse to bear any longer the heavy burden imposed upon her by the Dawes plan, and a German correspondent in this country went so far as to cable Europe that Secretary Hughes had made strong representations to the Allied governments that the Dawes plan is dependent on a peaceful solution of the evacuation of Cologne. The State Department's prompt denial of this was hardly necessary, inasmuch as our government is not in a position to make a protest about the alleged non-fulfillment of a treaty to which it had refused to become a party.

Nor would it be likely to contend that the Dawes plan is in any way dependent upon the evacuation of Cologne, as to which both the Dawes plan and the London agreement are silent, these referring only to the evacuation of the Ruhr. The decision of the British to delay the evacuation of the Cologne area, as has been shown, was due to evidence tending to convict Germany of ignoring her treaty obligations by secretly organizing a formidable military system. General Morgan of the Commission of Control having given warnings that within a year after withdrawal, at the present rate of preparation, the Germans, in men, guns, ammunition and explosives, would be as ready for an offensive campaign as they were in 1918. Under such circumstances, or alleged circumstances, the British decision to delay withdrawal can be readily understood.

CONSERVATION.

A plea to save nature from exploitation, such as that of Dr. Walcott of the Smithsonian Institution, can never fail to be timely enough, but there is not quite the same urgent need now that there was in the days when John Muir called on a neglectful government and an unreflecting people to save the forests from extinction. Much has been accomplished since then. Millions of acres of land have been set aside by the State and Federal governments, and the need of conservation is now widely understood and approved. Nevertheless the following written by John Muir in 1897 is not really out of date and may still be reprinted with the hope of profitable reminder:

Any fool can destroy trees. They can not run away; and if they could they would still be destroyed—chased and hunted down so long as fun or a dollar could be got out of their bark hides, branching horns or magnificent bole backbones. Few that fell trees plant them; nor would planting all much toward getting back anything like the noble primeval forests. During a man's life only saplings can be grown in the place of the old trees—trees of centuries old—that have been destroyed. It took more than three thousand years to make some of the trees in the Western woods—trees that are still standing in perfect strength and beauty, warping and singing in the mighty forests of the Sierra. Through all the wonderful, eventful centuries since Christ's time—and long before that—God has cared for these trees, saved them from drought, disease, earthquakes and a thousand straining, delving tempests and floods; but He can not save them from fools—only Uncle Sam can do that.

Released from prison on parole before the end of his term, W. H. Anderson, convicted forger and forger superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New York, has issued an important, defiant and denunciatory statement, which, in the view of the members, "any gradualist would pronounce indicative of two well-defined delusions—those of grandeur and of persecution." He seems to regard himself not only as the victim of a conspiracy but as the great all-conquering author of prohibition.

The National City Bank of New York is offering to its 8,000 employees at $2.75 each which will be on the market at $4.00. Shares in them erous industrial enterprises are now sold to employees on very favorable terms, and the practice is said to be bearing fruit in the form of good will between labor and capital.

It is lamented that the American reading public has "gone away after strange gods." This is true at least of the self-styled "intellectuals" and those "highbrow" critics who now seem able to be moved to enthusiasm only by fiction combining pessimism and indecency.

That Body of Yours

PREVENTING DEAFNESS.

You see people every day wearing an apparatus on the ear, or on the chest, to conduct sounds to the brain, owing to some defect in their hearing.

It would be interesting to trace the cause of so much deafness, but there is no question but that parents and teachers could have prevented many of these cases.

Fortunately the parents and teachers of today are watching this point carefully, and are able to have the hearing preserved in many cases.

In former days, children who could not hear, were thought to be just a little slow mentally, just as children who could not see the blackboard very well, were thought to be stupid.

And the impairment in hearing in many cases was found to be caused by colds that hung on, by bad tonsils, and catarrhal conditions of the throat.

By having these conditions cleared up, the hearing immediately improved, and the child's enjoyment of life increased immensely.

Another condition was the old-fashioned abscess in the ear.

In former days this abscess was allowed to form and finally break its way through the ear drum, if it did not go backwards into the bone, behind the ear and cause mastoid trouble, with the serious operation necessary therefor.

All the time the abscess was endeavoring to break through the drum, it was doing serious damage to the delicate mechanism of the ear, with the result that it was setting up changes that would become permanent, and the hearing be nearly, if not completely lost.

However the rule now is to open or puncture the drum, and the inflammatory material comes away, before it has a chance to do much damage inside.

This little hole in the drum does no harm. Sometimes it heals over entirely but does not seem to impair the hearing in any case.

Thus the removal of the soft growths in the nose—adenoids—and bad tonsils, the clearing up of all throat conditions, which, with the slight operation spoken of above for actual inflammation of the ear, are decreasing the amount of deafness in the world.

TODAY WE CELEBRATE

MARIA MARGARITA COSTA.

Maria Margarita Costa was an Italian poetess whose works were published at Paris. She was born at Rome in 1716. She was a woman of vast erudition, and had no difficulty in writing successfully in different kinds of literature, and also wrote the librettos of several operas.

THE TELESCOPE.

The total solar eclipse on the 24th of this month, during which the giant dirigibles Shenandoah and Los Angeles for purposes of observation, brings to mind the fact that just 215 years ago today, January 8, 1610, the first great astronomical discovery was made by the use of the telescope when Galileo discovered the satellites of Jupiter. It has been denied that the telescope constructed by Galileo was the first instrument of its kind, but certainly Galileo was the first to make an important and epochal use of the device. Jupiter was known as a planet in the Chaldean, it is said, some 3,000 years before the beginning of the Christian era, but it remained for Galileo to first see its attendant satellites, four in number.

Galileo's other remarkable discoveries included Saturn's ring, the sun's spots, and the stars nature of the Milky Way. He died 282 years ago today, January 8, 1642, on the anniversary of his great discovery.

ANNIVERSARY OF "OLD HICKORY'S" GREAT VICTORY.

"Andy" Jackson, "Old Hickory," won his famous victory at New Orleans one hundred and ten years ago today and Louisiana commemorates the day by making it an official state holiday. The defeat inflicted on the British forces was one of the most decisive in history and the casualties, considering the numbers of men engaged, were as heavy as many of the battles in the World war. Strangely to relate, peace had been agreed to between the two nations, but as there were neither telegraph, wireless nor radio in those days, neither the British commander nor Jackson knew anything of it, and the deadly secretary of the Times see and Kentucky riflemen had full play.

It was also on this date in 1806 that an English expedition took possession of the Cape of Good Hope, rightly named the "Cape of Adventure," thus laying the foundation for the future "Union of South Africa," and the immense British overseas dominions in the Dark Continent.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

MARY GRAHAM BONNER

TEDDY'S LETTER

Of course Santa Claus received letters from all over. And often he had to smile over the hopes and wishes in some of the different ones.

"I Held Her Hand."

For example, those who lived in warm places hoped it would be warm enough to swim or go walking or play tennis or have an out-of-door picnic around the Christmas holiday time.

Others hoped it would snow so they could go coasting or sleigh riding.

And others hoped it would be clear and cold, but that there would be no more snow so they could go ice skating.

He was wondering if he had enough of everything for everyone. He wanted to have all he could possibly manage, and oh, how he wished he could simply manage everything everyone wanted, but of course that wasn't possible even for him!

"Now," he said, "I have two letters still to read and to prepare the presents for those two who wrote the letters." And he began to open the first letter.

Inside was simply a very large piece of yellow paper, and on the paper was all sorts of strange looking pencil marks. Santa thought he could read all writing, but it was hard to make anything out of that.

He knew a very, very, very little girl or boy had written it, and he thought he would read the other one before he puzzled this out.

Perhaps, as they had come from the same place, this other letter would help him with the first, and sure enough, it had.

"Dearest Santa:

"My name is Teddy, and my sister's name is Tony. At least that is what we all call her, and if you asked where she lived and didn't call her Tony I don't think anyone except my mother or dad would know who you meant.

"Even they might have forgotten, for they never call her anything but Tony.

"The other letter is from Tony. She is only three, and she can't write. But I held her hand and tried to teach her how to write.

"She kept wanting to scribble, but she is little and you won't mind, will you, Santa? I kept telling her you couldn't read it, but she is such a cunning little thing you can't be cross with her.

"I tried to hold her hand so she could write the word doll, as she wants a doll more than anything else. That is, she wants a doll with a parasol to hold over the doll's head.

"She is just crazy about parasols. She says when she is big she is going to school every day and is going to carry a parasol to keep off the sun.

"I asked her what she would do when it rained and she said she would keep off the rain with it then.

"Not bad for a kid, was it, Santa? You see, it's pretty hot down here, and the sun shines an awful lot. But I hate it where it is cold, I guess you live where it's cold, but I suppose you're used to it, but I have never felt really cold weather.

"I'd love to have a pair of roller skates. The street in front of our house is fine for roller skating.

"I hope you don't mind the warmth when you get here, but maybe you'll like the change, and then it's fun to get back to the sleigh again, I suppose.

"Well, Santa, I must stop writing. Not because I've got anything special to do, but I just guess I'd better stop as I haven't anything else to say. Tony sends you a kiss—no, a dozen kisses, and we both send your our very best love.

A Doll With a Parasol.

"TEDDY."

"Ah, yes," said Santa, as he finished reading. "There are boys and girls where it is warm and boys and girls where it is cold, and each let give their own climate.

"But whether it is hot or cold, the children are pretty fine—the world over."

Easily Explained

The two small children were making their way home from the kindergarten school. They talked, as children will, about all the exciting things that had been happening in their respective homes. Then:

"Daddy—My daddy said our dog lost track and it came home yesterday afternoon."

"Yes—How funny! I wonder how it found its way back?"

"Oh—Well, you see, it looked as if it had been lost."

GAS BUGGIES—You Simply Can't Please Some People.

MY GOODNESS, HEM—WHY DON'T YOU OIL THESE DOORS SO THEY DON'T SQUEAK—IT'S ENOUGH TO DRIVE ANYONE CRAZY—

WHEN I'M THRU WITH THIS JOB SHE WON'T HAVE ANYTHING TO HOLLER ABOUT—

THERE'S NOT A SOUND OUT OF IT NOW—THAT OUGHT TO SUIT HER—

COME ON OUT AND TRY THE CAR NOW—I'VE FIXED THE DOORS SO YOU DON'T GET ANY NOISE OUT OF 'EM—

FOR HEAVEN'S SAKE! LOOK AT THE GREASE ON THAT GLOVE—NOW ON EARTH DO YOU GET ALL THAT OIL ON THE DOOR—THERE'S NO EXCUSE FOR IT—

The year book's closed and sealed at last. Nor can I alter what is past. My griefs, my pleasures, thoughts and acts. Are all on record as plain facts. But here before me, pure and white, Are pages now on which to write. I've but to choose 'twixt joy and sorrow. And start my future from tomorrow.

SEASONABLE MEATS

Chicken prepared and served in various ways is always a most delightful dish. Stuffed and roasted it can hardly be equalled, while smothered, fricassee and baked in milk are all most appetizing.

Smothered chicken is split down the back, and roasted whole with much basting, then served with a cream gravy.

Chicken fricassee with a mushroom or cream gravy with dumplings is one way to extend the chicken flavor and serve two or three more than can be served with roasted fowl.

Capon is heavier than ordinary chicken and a much more delicate flavor; this when stuffed with an oyster dressing is chicken par excellence.

A well-made rabbit stew or a rabbit pie is a tasty dish; when the season for game is open, they are usually plentiful.

A whole baked ham or a crown roast of pork are both popular meats at this season. A saddle of venison, or a few venison steaks are considered by those who are fortunate enough to have them, as rare tidbits.

Almost any dish of meat when well-cooked, garnished well, and carefully served makes a holiday dish.

The following are a few stuffings which are a little out of the ordinary:

Sweet Potato Stuffing.—Take two cupfuls of mashed sweet potato, two cupfuls of chopped apple, one cupful of soft bread crumbs, one-fourth of a cupful of melted butter, one teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth teaspoonful of pepper, and a teaspoonful of poultry dressing.

Celery Stuffing.—Take one-half of a bunch of celery, two tablespoonfuls of butter, two eggs, one pint of bread crumbs, salt and pepper to taste. Chop the celery, add the crumbs, squeezed dry from cold water, mix all the ingredients, add celery salt and the eggs lightly beaten.

"THEY ARE WEARING"—Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

A dinner frock worn at one of the smart New York night clubs was of dove gray crepe Elizabeth, trimmed with chinchilla and a gray chrysanthemum on the shoulder.

A coat of bottle green suede cloth had diagonal revers, collar and cuffs of embroidery in which red predominated. Bag and hat were also red.

A leopard coat recently seen was deeply bordered, collared and cuffed with white fox.

A three-quarter coat of two novelty pelts, one spotted and the other deep brown, was worked in diamond shapes with scarf neckline.

A sage green suede cloth wrap had gathered ruffles banded with chinchilla which also formed collar and cuffs. The gray felt hat was metal-studded around the edge.

Worn at a smart restaurant was a matron's frock with alternating rows of silver lace and black satin. A slight gathering at one side was held by a bright silver ornament.

Education's Impetus

The force of education is so great that we may mold the minds and manners of the young into that shape we please and give them the impression of such that it is almost never after them.

Ford Builds Cars on Broadway

THE outstanding feature of the Auto Show season in New York is the Ford Motor Company's exhibit on Broadway. The exhibit is a fine example of the Ford Motor Company's manufacturing process. It shows the assembly line in operation, from the raw materials to the finished cars. The exhibit is a masterpiece of engineering and design. It is a must-see for anyone interested in the automobile industry.

Truck as Adjunct Of Railroad

New York Central Now Using Motor Trucks for Short Hauls and Between Stations on Different Divisions.

By Telegraph to The Freeman
New York, Jan. 8.—Expansion of the motor truck operations of the New York Central Railroad was predicted by G. C. Woodruff, general freight agent of the road, at the open motor truck convention held at the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce offices here.

Another feature of the meeting was the recommendation that a committee of experts from both manufacturers and operators of commercial vehicles would be appointed to get basic facts of motor truck cost operation and to outline a cost accounting system.

Gordon Lee, speaking for F. R. Fagool, of the Fagool Motors Company, predicted the use of motor trucks in every city in the United States of 1,500 population or over.

"Based on nearly two years of experimental undertakings," said Mr. Woodruff, "I feel it can be safely said that a place, and a very large place, has been found for the motor truck as a useful and highly appreciated adjunct of the railroad, particularly of the railroad of which I am connected, for we feel that only a beginning has been made and that what has been done is but an indication of what can and probably will be done in the relatively near future."

Mr. Woodruff pointed out that the Harlem Division in the Hudson Division near New York, the motor truck is being used to save freight train operation at the same time giving improved service on all the stations affected. It is also being used on cross-hauls from one division to another as from Mt. Vernon to Yonkers. Similarly motor trucks are being operated at Buffalo between the New York Central Railroad and the connections.

"The railroad now has 50 separate trucking activities underway. These are being handled by established trucking concerns on a contract basis."

"Today in the state of California," Mr. Fagool's address noted, "there is perhaps not a city of town of 1,500 population or over that is not served by interurban motor bus transportation. What has already happened in California is absolutely certain to happen in all other states of the union, because the desires of the people in Ohio, Maine and Florida are very little different from the desires of the people in California."

Other speakers at the meeting were: B. B. Bachman, chief engineer, Autocar Company, on "Is Motor Truck Design Backward?" and Frederick C. Horner, manager, Railroad Transport, Engineering Service Department, General Motors Corporation, on "How Can the Truck Industry Standardize on Cost Figures?"

TWALFSKILL ROSE COMPANY ELECTS OFFICERS.

At the annual meeting of the Twalfskill Rose Company held Tuesday evening, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: George Schick, president; John Scully, foreman; John Flannery, first assistant foreman; Harry Healey, second assistant foreman; Harold Sanford, financial secretary; Charles Jenkins, recording secretary; John Scully, delegate to Hudson Valley Volunteer Firemen's Association; Edward Sanford, alternate; George Schick, delegate to Kingston City Volunteer Firemen's Association; Patrick Quigley, James Field and Joseph Gregory, trustees; William Ryan, janitor. A vote of thanks was extended to Rose-Gorman-Rose for their gift of a box of cigars.

After the routine business had been cared for, a dance was held in the rooms and refreshments were also served to the members and friends.

The company was honored by the presence of Fire Chief Joseph Murphy and Fire Commissioner J. Philip Belcher.

JUSTICE O'W HOLMES

Following retirement of Justice Joseph McKenna from the United States Supreme Court, reports persist in Washington that Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, who will soon celebrate his eighty-second birthday, also will retire.

THE MATCHING HAT.

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

The hat made of the same material as the frock or coat is developing from a fad into a fashion. In Paris one is quite accustomed to having hats fitted to one's head and made to order, but in the hurry of American life, one usually buys a hat ready to wear. It is reported, however, that so well received has been the notion of the hat of the same fabric as the costume, that sufficient material is purchased at the time to make a hat. This is not only true of fashions and novelty silks, but of certain woolen materials, especially those which are in the cashmere class.

That high front trimmings have won for themselves a place in the affections of women who are improved by anything which suggests height, is now admitted. Here one finds that a velvet choux in two colors is effective, and also that one may accustom oneself to the burden of a muff by having one of velvet instead of fur.

It has not all been clear sailing for those who have tried to restate the fad, the weather even seeming to be determined to circumvent their scheme, but most are still in the office, and are sure to return. The rather extraordinary fashion of trimmings the skirt and lower part of one's coat, leaving the collar untrimmed, is meeting with favor. (Copyright, 1925, Fairchild.)

ZULU GIRLS GO TO THE "ALTAR" YOUNG

Marriageable Maidens Paid for in Cattle.

When a Zulu girl goes courting, she wears her mother's kilt—for the excellent reason that hitherto she has worn no clothes at all, writes Grace L. Morrow, a few anklets and armlets, a "aporrant" of beads, constituting her whole attire.

In Zululand, just north of Natal, girls must marry early to replenish the cattle kraals. The maturity of a girl is celebrated by a "coming-out" party, her friends visit her, and a goat is killed and eaten. Henceforth she is an "Intombi," a marriageable young woman.

In the days of the terrible "Chaka," the Zulu Napoleon, they were a well-trained, disciplined people, and could easily exterminate the other tribes. Men were conscripted for military service, and could not marry until the chief permitted it.

When the cattle are scarce, all the marriageable "Intombi" are gathered into the chief's kraal, and set to re-thatch the huts, and make new sleeping mats. They probably have their little flirtations like girls of a whiter complexion, which all the Zulu matrons watch complacently. Meanwhile the bargaining for the brides proceeds. So many cattle down, so many to be paid hereafter.

After the marriages are arranged, all bargaining completed, the bride-elect begins the courtship. Donning her mother's kilt and accompanied by a younger girl, she goes to the hut where her "intended" is staying and asks for him by name, but cannot be induced to enter on this first visit.

Again she visits the beehive hut, and this time, if sufficiently well bribed by presents and promises, she will enter. In this kind of advances and retreats three weeks are passed before the marriage is consummated.

In the meantime, assisted by the women of the kraal, she is growing the marriage headdress, which once on is worn for life. Into her tight curls are woven, day by day, coconut fiber and yellow clay, until a huge hourglass-shaped erection begins to form on her head.

For three weeks after marriage the bride is excused from all work, but after that she becomes more or less the drudge of the kraal, doing chores for every one.

When a child is born, it is named after some current event. If born on a journey it will be christened after the river, the sea, or a moorland path. But if born during a smallpox epidemic, the unfortunate child may be labeled for life with such a name as "Nonjura"—vaccination.

For Safety at Sea
E. F. Spanner, British ship construction specialist, would reduce the damage from ramming in collisions by building ships with "soft ends." Mr. Spanner advocates using vertical instead of horizontal plates for the bow structure, with the lines of weakness formed by the joints of the shell and deck plating arranged in such a way that these joints would fall in a more or less predetermined way in case of collision. The resistance to shearing offered by the fastenings in the laps and other joints would be such that the gradual overcoming of this resistance and the crushing back of the bow structure would absorb the energy of the motion of the ramming ship so that she would be brought to a stop without piercing the side of the vessel.

Rome to Have Subway
The royal commissioner in charge of the city administration in Rome has approved in principle plans submitted by an Italian-French group which is seeking a subway concession. The proposals submitted cover the construction of two underground lines which will connect districts between which the traffic is especially heavy, the routes having been chosen entirely with a view to affording relief where it is most needed regardless of the heavy expense that this will entail. The narrow streets and congested traffic in Rome make the construction of a subway especially desirable, as the transportation problem will continue to become more difficult as the population increases.

Independent Poodle
Somebody's little poodle held up a south-bound passenger train on the Westfield bridge. The men in the cab saw the dog walking along the tracks. The locomotive whistles made no difference and the brakes were applied by the humane crew. The train came to a stop on the bridge. Just then the poodle decided it had gone far enough in that direction, anyway, and leisurely retraced its steps, passing under the entire train and ambled off the bridge while the passengers were puzzling over the delay.—Boston Globe.

Saving Lumber
Metal nail collars are now used to save the lumber lost by splitting when temporary structures are being torn down, and the time lost in pulling recalcitrant nails. Before the nail is driven, one of the collars is slipped over it, preventing it from entering the wood quite all the way. Thus a hammer claw can be slipped under the nail head, removing the nail easily. It is claimed that from 30 to 50 per cent of the time heretofore required for dismantling scaffolding can be saved by use of this invention.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Reward in Well-Doing
He that does good to another man does also good to himself not only in the consequence but in the very act of doing it, for the conscience of well-doing is an ample reward.

Effective Trap for Mice
When setting a mouse trap, try tying the bait in a piece of muslin. There is a certain amount of curiosity in a rodent that compels him to know through the muslin to get the bait, and the tug at the muslin is sure to cause the spring to close the trap.

THE SANDMAN STORY

RUNAWAY SNOWFLAKES

ONE night a band of little snowflakes softly crept out of their home and ran down to the earth without waiting for all their sisters and cousins and other relatives to go along.

"We have been waiting long enough for them," said one of the band. "I guess there are enough of us to amount to something down on the earth, though the others think we can do nothing without them."

So down the little band flittered, whirling and tumbling as they fell.

All the Snowflake Family on the Hill and Over the Meadows.

"I guess folks will be scared when they see us," said one, "just look how thick and white we are."

"And just see how big we are," said another, "we soon will cover everything white and won't those stay-at-home flakes be so very they did not come along with us?"

"Let's whirl upon that hill," said one big flake, "and cover it so no one can get over it to the other side."

So intent upon making things white were the runaways that they did not see Mr. Sunman peeking at them from behind a cloud. He had been watching them all the time, for he had no intention of letting the snow settle over the earth that day. He came out to shine all day and just because a little cloud got in his way he had no thought of being shut in.

Down, down fell the runaway snowflakes and settled on the hill, but they did not make a very thick covering as they soon saw.

"It is all white anyway," said one. "I thought we were big enough to make deep snow. O dear, I am so warm."

"You had no right to think anything," said old Mr. Sunman. "You should have waited until my day was done, you runaway children, and to pay you for leaving all your relatives up there worrying about you, I shall melt you all."

Poor little snowflakes, they did not have a chance to run, for Mr. Sunman breathed upon them his warm breath and down they sank into the earth and the hill was as bare as before they came.

"I'm sorry I had to do that," said Mr. Sunman and for a minute or two his face was hidden again, for unless he can smile he does not show it to the earth. "But I could not help it; I had to shine today and if those foolish children had waited until tomorrow they would have had plenty of help in making things white, but today is mine."

Then out from the cloud Mr. Sunman came and beamed all day upon the earth, and warmest he shone upon the hill where the runaway flakes were asleep.

But the next morning when they awoke they found all their sisters and cousins and all the Snowflake family on the hill and over all the meadows and fields, but no one scolded the runaways for they knew Mr. Sunman had taught them a lesson—he never runs from a little band of snowflakes; only when all the relatives are along does Mr. Sunman hide his face.

Facts about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; differences your lucky day, lucky jewel

The Appleton Family

Mr. Lyander John Appleton
Mrs. Lyander John Appleton
Miss Dorey Mayme Appleton
Master Channing Devere Appleton

WHEN Lyander John Appleton meets with an accident, or falls sick, the papers say that his wife is very low as a result of the shock, or is prostrated; nothing is said about what is going to become of Lyander John. Once when Lyander John was seriously ill with a fever, his wife sent a notice to the papers to the following effect: "Lyander John Appleton, one of our most prominent citizens, has been sick three weeks with a fever, and during that time his estimable wife hasn't had off her clothes once. Night and day, she attends his bedside, combining with the natural skill of a nurse, a fountain of love and tenderness. When his illness took a more serious turn yesterday, she became prostrated, and her physician fears the worst."

When Dorey Mayme Appleton was a young thing, she would get a wistful look in her eyes when the ice cream was passed, but now that she is a little old she gets it when she sees the motherless children of a very eligible widower.

It requires an average of two weeks for a storm to clear off in the Appleton home, and another in due in a week.

Chaucery Devere Appleton doesn't go to church regularly like his sister, but at least this may be said to his credit: "He hasn't her pie crust on his conscience."

Whenever Mrs. Lyander John Appleton is overcome with an ambition to grow rich she cuts a lot of pasteboard into squares and writes on them, "I plat" or "I quart," and then, when her husband comes home at night, is loaded with arguments concerning the money she could make if he would permit her to keep a cow.

Aurora

A VERY unusual name and yet one extremely prevalent in European countries, whence it has penetrated America, is Aurora. It signifies "the dawn," since Aurora was the mythological personification of the break of day. Her name comes from aurum (gold) because of the golden light she sheds before her. Aurora as the goddess of the dawn appears in all legends and was attached by the Greeks to their Eos, whose rosy fingers unbarred the gates of day.

When the Cinque-cento made classic lore the fashion, Aurora came into favor with the fair dames of France and has ever since continued in vogue there. Occasionally, it passed into Germany as Aurora, where the first famous woman of that name was Aurora von Kleinsmuck, mother of Marshal Saxe. In Italy, both the dawn and the proper name were called Zora and, as a mark of endearment, Zorana.

Aurora has persisted in spite of the canon prohibiting the giving of the names of heathen gods in baptism. Like most mythological characters, she is a Latin divinity, since Latin names were used throughout Europe and only comparatively modern criticism has endeavored to distinguish between the distinct myth of the Greek and Latin races. Most mythological names, including Aurora, have their vogue in France and England, which are most under the dominion of fancy with regard to names.

While no variety of note have been addressed direct to Aurora, she is a favorite subject with the poets who find her personification much more fanciful and romantic than the mere word "dawn." She is poetically represented as rising out of the ocean in a chariot with rosy fingers dripping dew. Kants was specially fond of referring to Aurora, and our beloved Longfellow made frequent mention of her.

Aurora's jewel is the chrysolite—the chrysolite of sunrise," wrote Shelley. To exert its power, the amber gem should be set in gold. It is said to have the power of dissipating evil spirits if worn on the left arm. When dreamed of, it signifies "good luck necessary." Aurora's lucky day is Monday and 5 is her mystic number.

Financial and Commercial

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Jan. 8.—Most of the speculative markets reacted today from the buoyant upward movements which characterized the first three sessions of the week. An effort on the part of bullish traders to take advantage of this situation on stock exchange met with rebuff, however, and, after a period of irregular trading in which offerings of industrial stocks were large and prices consequently heavier, the stock market developed a strong tone and prices started a modest climb to higher levels.

The oil and steel stocks were the most active of the industrials, though individual stocks in the motor, equipment and mercantile groups gave evidence of their popularity. Sears Roebuck's rise to a new high at 162 was notable. Marine Preferred at 46 1/2 was only fractionally below the best price record of 1924.

United States Steel was a powerful leader in the industrial list and most of the independent steel shares were disposed to follow the lead.

The low priced oil stocks, including Shams, Shell Union, Invincible, Cosden and Sinclair were under accumulation and all offerings around current price levels were taken by bullish traders who are favorably impressed by the improving outlook in the oil industry. Invincible Oil was a leader in this group today with an advance to 18 1/2, up 2 1/2 points from yesterday's low.

Tails were inactive, with some of the recently prominent stocks retreating to lower levels under profit taking.

Money flowed back to the banks from intercity points and call money got back to 2 per cent in the fourth hour. The money rates were unchanged.

No Hearing for French Terms

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Jan. 8.—The shal-lowness of France's recent "proposal" for settling her four billion dollar war debt was emphasized here today by an official announcement that no meeting of the American debt funding commission would be called to consider the terms proposed in the Clementel memorandum.

After a thorough examination of this remarkable document administration officials have reached the conclusion that M. Clementel has not proposed, even informally and unofficially, anything worth considering. For the time being, it appeared today the French debt discussion will mark time. It is the view of administration officials that little or nothing can be accomplished until the Allied finance ministers conclude their meeting in Paris.

If, as expected, an agreement is effected there, which will remove the uncertainty that now exists over the reparations problem, pressure will be exerted on France to begin serious funding negotiations.

The British proposal for a general war debt conference at Brussels next spring has been abandoned because of American opposition.

Details of the Anglo-American accord remain to be worked out. Some may prove knotty, but with the auspicious start officials expressed the opinion today that ultimately an agreement would be effected.

The British have backed down considerably in their opposition to the United States sharing in the Dawes plan proceeds.

The total of American claims against Germany is roughly $600,000,000 divided into two general classifications. The first class amounts to $250,000,000 and consists of the American costs in occupying the Rhineland. The second involves $350,000,000 and includes damages to nationals and property, loss of the army costs, the United States is already assured of priority payments under the Wadsworth agreement negotiated a year ago. Under this agreement the United States was to be paid approximately $20,000,000 annually for the next 12 years.

Likes and Dislikes for Various Kinds of Food

Many races, many foods, many fads. The luxury of one people is the bane of another. An attempt is being made to introduce snails as an article of food in certain London restaurants. The French, of course, regard snails as a delicacy, while Britishers almost shudder at the thought of eating them! Yet English folks eat mussels, whelks and winkles, which in some countries are regarded as being unfit for human consumption. In England the helix is relished by many people, but in Scotland it is detested by nearly everybody. Rabbits are looked upon as vermin in some parts of America and Australia and are seldom served at table. In Britain rabbit pie is a favorite dish. Swede turnips are often eaten in Scotland and Canada with other vegetables, whereas in some parts of England they are cordially disliked and given only to cattle. Turnip-tops in Scotland, again, are not considered worth cooking. But in Covent Garden they sell by the ton.—London Mail.

Growth of Jellyfish

The manner in which a jellyfish produces its "children" is really wonderful.

In most cases the beginning is an egg, which, lying on the bottom, produces a beautiful tree-like growth. The "tree" fastens itself to the bottom and brings forth buds which, when ripe, drop off and develop into jellyfish. The latter, in turn, lay eggs and the process is repeated, as told in London Tit-Bits. Most of the very large species have a different way of reproducing themselves. The egg is set free in the water and develops into a pear-shaped larva, which for a while swims about rapidly, being provided with hair-like appendages that serve the purpose of ears. Then the larvae settles down, anchors itself to the bottom, increases in size rapidly and finally splits up into thin, flat discs which swim off and grow up into large jellyfishes.

Horses Repay Kindness

It is said the Arabs were the first to appreciate a horse's intelligence and to treat him accordingly. They kept the history of their horses written on tablets of iron and traced their parentage back to the time of the pharaohs. They were extremely thoughtful of the comfort of the horse and it was even said they took better care of their horses than they did of their families. Constant companionship made the Arabian horse quick to understand the meaning of words, and kindness made them fearless, brave and obedient. The intelligence of the horse varies just as it does in other animals, or even people, and is developed or retarded according to man's treatment of him, says a bulletin of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Almond's Quaker Habits

The almond tree has peculiar whims. It seems to prefer California as its habitat, as 80 per cent of the almonds grown in America are produced in that state, and in a rather restricted territory of that. The bulk of the crop is grown around Redding, says Nature Magazine. It seems to require the spots where extremes of cold and heat are present in their respective seasons, and photographs have been taken of an orchard with snow on the ground on the first of February, and again with the trees in full bloom by the 20th of the month. The same variety will not flourish in another. Growers must plant alternating rows of dwarfed and standard trees in order to insure a harvest.

ORCHARD GLEANINGS

ECONOMICAL TO FIX ALL SPRAYS AT HOME

Making sprays at home for orchard and field spraying is the most economical and desirable method of handling the spray problem. By buying the crude materials and doing the work at home the high cost of labor and excessive freight rates on liquid materials is eliminated. Added to this is the certainty of a supply at the proper time and a knowledge of exactly what the spray material contains, says W. D. Moore, extension plant pathologist at Clemson college, who gives below the methods to follow in preparing these sprays.

Bordeaux Mixture.—This spray can be made easily at home and in any desired quantities. Before use for spraying, stock solutions of bluestone and stone lime should be prepared. This is done by dissolving one pound of bluestone for every gallon of water used. Usually a barrel of 30 gallon capacity is used and 50 pounds of bluestone is suspended in the top of the barrel in a bag. In another barrel the stock solution of lime can be prepared in the same way, (one pound for every gallon of water) being careful to thoroughly slake the lime. Then to make a 4-50 Bordeaux mixture at spraying time, add four gallons of the bluestone solution to the tank, pour in about 40 gallons of water, add four gallons of the lime solution and make up to 50 gallons. This is the quickest and easiest method of making this spray.

Steam-Boiled Lime-Sulphur.—This important spray can be made at home at a small cost. If a small steam boiler can be provided for producing steam pressure of about 20 pounds. Anyone desiring to set up a steam plant should write to Clemson college for full information and the necessary assistance. Where a comparatively large amount of spraying is to be done, it would be advisable to set up one of these small plants.

Self-Boiled Lime-Sulphur.—This summer spray must be prepared at the time of spraying. It cannot be left to stand overnight. It is easy to make, however, and that is our best spray for peaches. A stock of sulphur and good stone lime should be bought in early spring so as to be ready when the time for applying arrives.

Pruning Fruit Trees to Accomplish Four Things

Some one has given the following general condensed rules for pruning of young trees: "Prune fall-set trees early in the spring, before the buds swell; prune spring-set trees as soon as planted. Cut out entirely all weak, broken or bruised limbs, keeping the head properly balanced; then shorten the remaining shoots to three or four buds at the base. Do not shorten cherry trees. When planting peach trees, cut off all limbs, leaving a stick and cut this back to 18 to 24 inches from the ground. Head the tree right when you plant it. Low heads are best."

The pruning of fruit trees is to accomplish four things. It should be done in such a manner that there is an even flow of sap to all parts. Superfluous shoots should be removed to prevent a waste of vitality in supplying such shoots with sap. Fruit bearing is stimulated, but care must be taken that this stimulation is not overdone. The fourth object is to keep the head of the tree symmetrical. The location of the orchard has much to do in regard to whether or not the trees should be trained to open or closed heads. In a damp locality where mists appear on the sides of the trees, it is well to train to an open head so that sunlight can be thrown into the tops. In hot or dry localities, or where the sun shines unusually bright it is better to leave a close head to protect the fruit from the direct rays of the sun.

Fruit From Dwarf Trees Is of Superior Quality

One of the advantages of the dwarf tree is that it bears at an early age. For example, the Alexander apple will bear the second year after planting when grown as a dwarf while it requires from six to ten years to come into bearing when grown as a standard. The fruit from the dwarf trees is considered to be of better quality. The dwarf trees are shorter lived than the standard and they require more care. Ordinarily they are not to be recommended except on city lots and where it is expected to grow fruit for only a few years. The cost of the trees and the extra care and management required would make it unprofitable to grow this kind of trees in a commercial orchard.

Selection of Clons Is Important in Grafting

The selection of clons is of prime importance in grafting. Some but thoroughly mature wood, cut while the buds are fully dormant, should ever be used. Preferably it should be one year old, though sometimes two and three-year-old wood gives good results. The cut end with its soft wood for grafting. Clons may be packed in damp moss or sand and stored in a cool cellar until buds are trees exposed to weather begin to break.

Explaining Dew

Three important sources of dew are recognized: the condensation of the moisture of the atmosphere (which dew may be said to fall); the condensation of vapors evaporated from the earth (when dew then, and the moisture exhaled by plants.

'Plane Terrified Pedestrians

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Jan. 8.—Charged with flying his plane so low over upper Broadway as to terrify passing pedestrians below, Lieutenant James T. Hutchison, "second best pilot" in the army air service, went on trial by general court martial at Governor's Island today. It is the first case of its kind.

Lieutenant Hutchison pleaded not guilty and intimidated through counsel that professional jealousy on the part of a fellow officer was responsible for his prosecution.

No Progress in Conferences

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Paris, Jan. 8.—Ambassadors Kellogg and Herrick and Colonel James A. Logan, United States observer on the reparations commission, attended the inter-allied financial conference's second plenary session when it was called to order at 5 o'clock this evening.

As the allied representatives met, word came from authoritative sources that the conversations between France's finance minister, Clementel and England's chancellor of the exchequer, Churchill, relative to payment of war debts, were making no progress.

Vanderlip Gave Bond for Means

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Jan. 8.—Gaston B. Means, former federal agent under $10,000 bail on a charge of conspiracy to obstruct justice, sprang a sensation at his trial before Federal Judge Walter Lindley today by revealing that Frank A. Vanderlip, international banker, had furnished bond for him.

Means, whose testimony in the Teapot Dome investigation was a feature of the oil scandal, said he persuaded Vanderlip to approve his bond during that investigation.

Means's trial was postponed until Monday at the request of his attorney, Abraham Meinh, who said he needed more time to study the case. Keith Lorenz, a lawyer for the bonding company, made a motion requesting cancellation of Means's bond, which would keep the former federal agent in jail pending the outcome of his trial in withholding decision on the motion until Monday Judge Lindley rejected the bonding company for what he termed "poor grace" inasmuch as the defendant already was under bond and his appearance was delayed.

Means, who said he had lost 65 pounds and was suffering from gall stones, smiled in promising to give some "warm" testimony. "I'll tell everything I know," he said.
